

Judging from the actions of Sinclair Broadcasting in making the decision to force their stations to air an anti-kerry documentary right before the up-coming election, it is clear that large companies control the airwaves unless they can be made to follow the laws that govern such actions. The consolidation of our media is giving corporate interests too much influence over our democracy. It's more important that we see real people from our own communities and more substantive news about issues that matter.

It is important that we strengthen media ownership rules. The license renewal process needs to involve more than a returned postcard.

Please intervene in this travesty of news by Sinclair.
Thank you.
